

Wildlife Photographer Takes Readers on Wild Ride Through South America in Newly-Released Book "Wildlife in Wild Lands: Photography for Conservation in Southern South America" Now Available

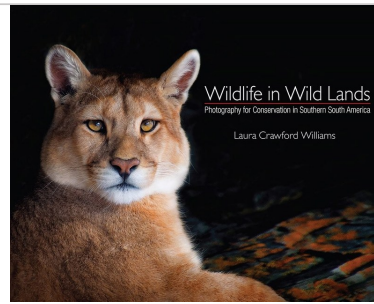

English ▾

---

NEWS PROVIDED BY
Laura Crawford Williams →
Nov 15, 2017, 08:53 ET

---

BOCA RATON, Fla., Nov. 15, 2017 /PRNewswire/ -- Wildlife photographer Laura Crawford Williams (lcwphoto.com) invites you to take a walk with her on the wild side and behold her breathtaking photography captured during her eight-year journey through South America's most robust landscapes. Wildlife in Wild Lands: Photography for Conservation in Southern South America, a stunning collection of unique animals in dramatic landscapes, is available now.

(PRNewsfoto/Laura Crawford Williams)...

An internationally recognized and award-winning photographer, Williams captures and shares her inspiring journey within 244 vivid pages, accessible in both English and Spanish. In Wildlife in Wild Lands: Photography for Conservation in Southern South America, she commemorates her colorful career. The exclusive images in this table top book, 10 years in the making, resonate with a strong theme of conservation, allowing readers to connect to a world in need of exposure thousands of miles away.

"It's my sincere hope that Wildlife in Wild Lands may influence others to care more about the unique, fragile and irreplaceable beauty of our world," she said. "It's up to those of us who know we cannot live without wildlife to inform those who foolishly believe they can."

Since 2007, she and partner German Ambrosetti traveled together as photographers and videographers, beside scores of conservation-minded individuals and organizations. Together they helped to protect threatened species in Argentina, Chile, Bolivia, and Brazil. Their dedication to conservation is poignantly reflected in this inspiring book.

Laura's work has been published and recognized by such magazines as National Geographic, National Wildlife, The Nature Conservancy and Nature's Best. Her love of photography came naturally and led her to success in many areas. With Wildlife in Wild Lands: Photography for Conservation in Southern South America she hopes to inspire intellectual curiosity and invite others to share the same excitement and awe that she experiences when working with wildlife in the field.

About Laura Crawford Williams

Laura is a professional wildlife photographer and wildlife conservation advocate (lcwphoto.com). She has earned multiple national and international awards for her photography and continues to make headlines. Her educational and professional background has provided her with a unique blend of scientific knowledge, technical expertise, visual skill and sensitivity. This diverse mix has helped her become successful in the competitive world of professional photography. It is her mission to make a difference through her photography, while encouraging others to explore their own wildlife worlds! (wildlifeinwildlands.com).

Media Contact: Sara Arbelaez; 561-750-9800 EX: 2100 PR@transmediagroup.com

SOURCE Laura Crawford Williams